Read the text and answer the questions.

The Fourth of July is an important holiday in the United States. It is also called Independence Day. On this day, Americans celebrate the birth of their country. On July 4, 1776, the leaders of the thirteen American colonies signed a paper called the Declaration of Independence. This paper said that the colonies were free from the rule of Great Britain. That was a big moment in American history! Today, people all over the United States celebrate the Fourth of July in fun and exciting ways. Many families have picnics, cookouts, or parties. Some people watch parades with music, flags, and marching bands. At night, people gather to see colorful fireworks that light up the sky. A lot of people wear red, white, and blue on the Fourth of July. These are the colors of the American flag. The flag has 50 stars, one for each state, and 13 stripes for the original colonies. Independence Day is a time to celebrate freedom, history, and the people who helped build the United States. It is a day to spend with family, friends, and neighbors while remembering the meaning of this special holiday.
